An eight-day Intensive program at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts focusing on enriching the participants' experience as the key resource to the playwright and director of new work.

Eligible participants are current university students [undergraduate or graduate] and recent graduates entering the field. A limited number of places in the Intensive will be held for faculty. It is anticipated that up-to sixteen participants will be invited.

The program will consist of:

- Daily meetings with Mark Bly
- Assignments with mentor dramaturgs on the eight plays being developed and rehearsed during the MFA Playwrights' Workshop, produced in association with NNPN, at the Kennedy Center.
- Group sessions with each projects' dramaturg.
- Discussions on institutional new play development process and policy with the theatre companies represented on the creative teams of the MFA Playwrights' Workshop.

The creative teams are still being determined for summer 2016, but the theatres represented 2015 included: Centerstage, Actors Theatre of Charlotte, Actors Express, Phoenix Theatre, Milagro, Mo'elo Performing Arts, New Repertory Theatre, and Alliance Theatre.

Each day's schedule will be coordinated with the MFAPW rehearsal blocks [9:30am-1:30pm, 2:30-6:30pm], with lunch meetings and early evening sessions.

Tuition and Housing: $600

Travel and meals are the responsibility of the participant. Shared Lodging will be in the residence halls of the George Washington University, in the Kennedy Center neighborhood at a cost of $36-56 (shared/private) per night.

To Apply:

-a letter of motivation for attending the New Play Dramaturgy Intensive

-a resume of related experience

-an appropriate writing sample
